

Current News Release

Additional Arrests in Exeter Homicide Investigation

Released by: Michael A. Delaney, Attorney General

Subject: Additional Arrests in Exeter Homicide Investigation

Date: April 18, 2013

Release Time: Immediate

Contact: Susan G. Morrell, Senior Assistant Attorney General
(603) 231-1585

John J. McCormack, Attorney

At the Attorney General's Office – (603) 271-3671

New Hampshire Attorney General Michael A. Delaney, New Hampshire State Police Colonel Robert C. Quinn, and Exeter Police Chief Richard Kane announce that two additional arrests have been made in connection with the murder of Amanda "Amy" Warf. Sarah Desjardins (34) of 67 Railroad Avenue, Epping, NH, was arrested last night and charged with one count of Conspiracy to Commit Murder and one count of Conspiracy to Commit Hindering Apprehension or Prosecution in connection to the death of Amy Warf. Sarah Desjardins is currently married to Aaron Desjardins. Aaron Desjardins has been arrested and is being held without bail for the murder of his ex-wife, Amy Warf. An arraignment is expected to be scheduled for 9:30 a.m. today in Exeter District Court in Brentwood, NH.

In addition, Michele Corson (43) of 373 Water Street, Skowhegan, ME was arrested last night in Skowhegan, Maine, and charged with one count of Fugitive from Justice in connection with the murder of Amy Warf. The State of New Hampshire has obtained arrest warrants for Michele Corson charging her with Conspiracy to Commit Murder and one count of Accomplice to First Degree Murder in connection with the death of Amy Warf. Michele Corson is Aaron Desjardins's sister. Aaron Desjardins has been arrested and is being held without bail for the murder of his ex-wife, Amy Warf. Corson's arraignment is expected to be scheduled for Friday, April 19, 2013, in either Skowhegan District Court or Somerset Superior Court in Skowhegan, ME.

Source URL (retrieved on 2014-09-14 12:51): <http://exeternh.gov/police/current-news-release>